PLANTATION NEWS.

St Jago de la Vega, Oct. i. A committee, on motion of Mr Shirley, is appointed to examine into, and report to the House, the various allegations and charges which, by the agent's letters, and the minutes of the House of Commons of Great Britain, appear to be contained in a great number of petitions presented to that Honourable House, on the subject of the flave trade, and the treatment of the negroes in this and the rest of his Majesty's sugar colonies, to report the proceedings and refolutions of the British Parliament thereon; and, further, to consider whether it may be proper for this House to adopt any, and what measures on this important occasion, and to report their opinion to the House.

Mr Shirley prefaced this motion with a speech of upwards of two hours, and was followed by Mr Redwood and Mr Edwards. The arguments were most interesting, and fully equal to the importance of

Mr Shirley dwelt chiefly on the fituation of the negroes in this island, and the abuses committed in the slave trade. Mr Redwood, in a speech of great neatness and elegance, was against any enquiry by a Committee, on the grounds that the charges brought against the planters, by petitions and pamphlets in England, were founded on ignorance and milioformation; and that it was beneath the dignity of the House to enter into so serious a refutation of them Mr Edwards replied to Mr Redwood, in a speech that did equal honour to his understanding and his feelings. Perfectly mafter of his fubject, his arguments were clear, persuasive, and convincing.

St Jago de le Vega, Ost. 2. On Wednesday the 3d ult. at half past three P. M. during a very severe thunder florm, we are informed, that the house of 11. Robertion, on Friendlhip Pen, in St Elizabeth's, was nearly deltroyed by a flash of lightning, which fell on the fouth angle of the roof, and running down a rafter till it reached the wall plate, divided into four directions, one of which, in passing through the pantry, melted some iron and pewter utensils, set the boards on fire in feveral places, and struck down three negroes. Another direction entering the hall, thivered one of the bullet-wood uprights of ten inches square, from top to bottom, struck the Doctor senseles in his chair for several minutes, and deprived him of his hearing, and in part his fight, for that afternoon. Mrs Robertson and the overseer were also severely electrified, and two negroes, attending at table, were shrown down. It then took a direction through the back piazza, split one of the rafters in pieces, and tore out all the nails from top to botfire dropped on the table, from the room the fire, and the house must inevitably have been confumed, had there not been providentially a very heavy fall of rain, which extinguished it. The loudness of the explosion exceeded any thing in nature that words can express. We are happy to add, that the Doctor and all his family are perfectly recovered.

Ott. 25. Yesterday this town and neighbour-hood were visited with several very severe claps of thunder, preceded by some remarkable vivid flashes of lightning. A negro carpenter, who was at work at the pen of George Wotton, Esq; upon the Port Henderson Road, was struck dead, and several boards torn from the house.

Extrast of a letter from Port Morant, dated the 15th inftant.

"The weather in this quarter has been very bad for two weeks past, attended with much thunder. On Saturday evening last the house of a Dutchman on the Bay was struck with lightning, which passed through the house, scorched him severely, and killed a negro on the spot."

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

FRIDAY, Jan. 2.

At four o'clock, Mr Hatfell, Chief Clerk of the House of Commons, having previously directed the Serjeant at arms to carry away the mace, which is a fymbol of authority peculiarly annexed to the office of Speaker, rofe in his place at the table, to address the members prefent, who attended in confiderable numbers. His address was very short, and in the following words-

ern I have to inform the with gre 46 House of the melancholy event which has hap pened this morning :-THE DEATH OF MR

" SPEAKER."

Having communicated this information, Mr Hat-fell directed the Serjeant at Arms to bring in the Mace, and then he fat down in his Chair at the The Serjeant accordingly brought in the mace, and placed it not upon, but under the table, where it is always laid, when the House is fitting in a Committee. It is only when the Speaker is present that the mace is placed upon the table. After fome

Mr Rose stood up, and addressing Mr Hatsell, he faid it was with great concern the House had received from him a confirmation of the report which had been for some hours in circulation, of the Speaker's death. He thought, that in the present situation of the Honse, a short adjournment would be the most adviseable measure that could be adopted; he would therefore move that the House should adjourn to Monday next. Mr Vyner faid, he did not intend to oppose an adjournment; but as some gentlemen doubted whether the power of the Clerk of the House, in the absence of a Speaker, or during a vacancy of the Chair, went further than to adjourn the House from read which might clear up that point.

Mr Rose got up a second rime, not, as he faid, for the purpose of preventing the clerk from reading precedents, but of informing the House, that it might possibly be pronofed to them to proceed on Monday to the election of a Speaker.

Mr Hatfell then read an extract from the John nal in the year 1783, from which it appeared, that the late Speaker had, at that period, fent a letter to him (Mr Hatfell the Chief Clerk), informing him, that a near relation of the Speaker had lately died; and that he (the Speaker) would be much obliged to the House, if it would so far indulge him, as to dispense with his attendance for a short time.

It appeared also, from the extract, that the House granted the Speaker's request, and adjourned from the Monday to the Wednesday.

Mr Vyner finding by this precedent, that the House could, in the absence of the Speaker, adjourn for a longer term than from day to day, fignified, by a bow, that he was fatisfied; and Mr Hatfell having put the question, on Mr Rose's notion, it was carried without any debate, and the House immediately adjourned to Monday.

I. O N D O N, Jan. s.

We feel inexpressible pleasure in being able to furnish our readers with the following good account of his Majesty, as communicated by Dr Willis, in a letter to a friend residing in Bristol .- He says, "The King is much better, as will appear evident, when I inform you, that wishing to have something done in London, he wrote a letter for that purpose, which was couched in as good terms as the wifelt of his fubjects could have done."

The variations in his Majesty's disorder are confidered as favourable fymptoms; and the accounts for fome days past have given great hopes. Private accounts are likewise highly flattering. The intervals of reason last week were many and long.

Yesterday morning died, at Caen Wood, the Right Hon. William Earl Mansfield. He is sueceeded in his title and immense property by his nephew, Lord Vifcount Stormont.

The Queen is to have the care and possession of all the King's property, real and personal. This is what her Majetty has been so anxious to obtain, and not the Regency. The diamonds alone are

The office of Chief Justice of Eyre is worth three thousand pounds per ann. and comes in good time for Lord Loughborough, if he should take the Seals upon the new arrangement.

By the death of Lord Grantley and the Speaker of the House of Commons, two valuable places are fallen into the gift of the Regent the offices of Chief Juffree in Eyre, North and South of Trent. In addition to the Chief Justiceship, Mr Cornwall had a pension of 500 l. per ann. for auditing the German accounts.

Earl Spencer goes to Ireland, accompanied by Mr Wyndham, as his Secretary; the Duke of Norfolk having refused that office.

His Grace the Duke of Northumberland, in cafe of a change of Administration, will be offered the Matter Generalthin of the October which it is The death of the Speaker throws public affairs into a new fituation. The House of Commons is now completely disjointed, because it has heretofore been an indispensable form of Parliament to present the Speaker to the King for his royal appro-

In consequence of the Speaker's death, this day is expected to bring almost as many members together in both Houses as were present when the grand question was decided.

Friday at half past two o'clock there was a Council held at the Marquis of Carmarthen's office, Whitehall, attended by the Lord Chancellor, the Right Hon. William Pitt, the Duke of Richmond, the Marquisses of Carmarthen and Stafford, the Earl of Chatham, and Lord Sydney; at half past four o'clock the Council broke up. when feveral letters were dispatched to Mr Eden, Ambassador from this Court to that of Spain.

During the council, a messenger arrived with a letter from her Majesty to the Lord Chancellor, which occasioned a temporary adjournment of the Council, while his Lordship wrote an answer to her Majesty, which he dispatched by the messenger to Kew.

The Great feal has been examined by feveral well verfed in the Lucinian mysteries; and the opinion is, that it is pregnant with illegitimate twins, Regent and a Speaker!

The restrictions to be imposed on the Prince of Wales, are to continue but for fix menths, Mr Pitt's defire was to have them continue during the time of the Regency; but this the Lord Chancellor opposed with a becoming indignation.

Summonfes were fent round to the members on Friday to obtain a full attendance on this day.

The Speaker's Political character. He was bred to the bar, but marrying Lord Hawkefbury's fifter, left the bar, and came into Parliament. From his matrimonial connection, he was supposed to be one of the confidential junto. After the peace of 1763, he was appointed one of the persons to liquidate the German accompts, for which fervice he had a pension allowed him. Some time afterwards, he either differed, or affected to differ, with his brother-in-law, and joined the Earl of Shelburne's party; and was with the Opposition in all the questions concerning the Middlefex election, the profecutions concerning Junius's letters, &c. But in 1774, he was made a Lord of the Treasury, which place he held until the general election in 1780. Sir Fletcher Norton, who had been Speaker, having given fome offence to the Court, he was, when the new Parliament met, refused the Speaker's chair, and Mr Cornwall was chosen Speaker. Many members, several of whom are now in office, were for appointing the Right Hon. Frederick Montague, Speaker's and it was confessed by all impartial perfores the before at confessed, by all impartial persons, that he was the most proper man of all the House of Commons,

THE OFFICE or SPEAKER.

The first thing done by the Commons upon the first meeting of a Parliament, is to choose from among themselves a Speaker, who must be approved of by the Sovereign; and who, upon his admission begs his Majesty that the Commons during their sit-"May have free access to his Majesty, freedom ting "May have free access to his Majerty, freedom of speech in their own house, and security from arrefts.

His election is by a majority of votes, and his of-fice is to act as Prefident in putting questions, reading briefs of bills, keeping order, reprimanding the refractory, adjourning the House, &c.—The mace is the entign of his authority.

The Speaker is not allowed to perfwade or diffuade; -but only to make a fhort and plain narrative: Nor to vote, unless the House be equally divided. -In this poise of opinion were the Ministerialists andOpposition, when the House d vided on the Duke of Richmond's detestable plan of fortification; - and the Right Hon. Charles Wolfran Cornwall, by his casting vote, annihilated a scheme fraught with mischiefs to the navy and marine commerce of England. The zeal with which he feized this opportunity of doing his country fervice, will confer upon his memory a lafting honour; and ought to be recorded on his tomb as the best of praises.

On subjects of extreme importance, when the whole House is formed into a committee, it is usual to discuss the question in the same place though in a lefs folemn manner, and under another Prefident, who is called the Chairman of the Committee. In order to form the House again, the mace is replaced on the table, and the Speaker goes again into his chair.

That the death of Lord Grantly should have preceded that of the Right Hon. Wolfran Cornwall, only one day, is remarkable from these Gentlemen having both held the office of Speaker.

The Speaker of the House of Commons has been on every former occasion, chosen by direction of the King; he is not established in his office, but by the approbation of the Sovereign: and the freedom of ech granted to the Commons, is in confequence of his application. - How these forms are to be difpeofed with in the present instance, it is utterly im-possible to say; we have our doubts however, whether in the present mode of proceeding, the direction of the King may not be feigned; the approbation of the King, also feigned, and the authority of the House of Commons, in fact, wholly supported by fiction!

The utility of the maxim which holds equally good in the political as in the physical world, principilis obta, was never more apparent than on the prefent occasion. The first deviations from the right line of the constitution, have led the members of administration into an inextricatable maže: the death of the Speaker has given rife to an embarraffment almost equal to any thing that has arisen on the subject of the Regency!

Amongst the other consequences of the decease of the Speaker, no vacancy in the House of Commons strained authority of the House, but by the fanction of the Sovereign or Regent for the time being: Uutill then no warrant can legally be iffued for a new election. The only vacancies for the prefent are, the one for Surry, in the room of the Hon. William Norton, now Lord Grantly, and the other for Rye in Suffex, in the room of the Right Honourable the late Speaker.

Friday a Court of Directors was held at the East India House for the first time fince the holidays, in order to examine dispatches from India, and on other bufinefs.

Private letters have been received in town from Bengal, of fo late a date as the fecond of June lait, at which time we are happy to learn, that the Governor General, Earl Cornwallis, was in perfect health; and that, from the disposition of the country powers, a long continuance of the blessings of peace was likely to happen.

Friday Captain Applegarth of the Europa, and Captain Robert Pouncy of the Sullivan, East India ships, took their leave of the Court of Directors of the East India Company, preparatory to their departure for Fort St George and China, where they are to proceed.

The stocks from the period of the King's illness time have fallen three per cent. A most melancholy accident happened on Thursday last at Tunbridge:—a considerable number of persons were amusing themselves upon the river Medway, when the ice suddenly gave way, and twelve of them were drowned.

Not long fince a terrible accident happened at Effone, in France. Some Members of the Academy of Sciences were making trial of a new falt, difcovered by M. Berthollet, as a fubilitute for falt-petre in the composition of gunpowder. While it was working up into a paste with the charcoal and sulphur, much caution was directed to be used, and M. Letors, one of the Administrators General of powder, apprehensive of the precipitancy of the workman who was employed, undertook the talk himself. A detonation suddenly took place which destroyed him, and threw a young lady, daughter of the Director of Essone, with violence against a wall. This shocking event produced the utmost consternation in all who were present; and M. Letors is infinitely regretted, who fell a victim to his humanity, from the fear of exposing a workman, with a large family, to that fate which he himself

Some days ago two men of the name of Ligget and Carmichal, were apprehended for breaking into the warehouse of John Lauder shopkeeper, Dum-fries, and stealing out of it a cask, containing twen-ty gallons, or thereby, of British spirits. They were carried before the Justices of this county; and after a long examination of themselves, and witnesses to prove their guilt, were committed to prison to stand trial for the offence before the High Court of Justiciary. Yesterday se'ennight, between eleven and twelve o'clock at night, an attempt was made to break in-to the warehouse of William Grainger, in Bridgend of Dumfries. The villain, who had on a large whitish coat, made the attempt, by forcing a window below a room where a person was sleeping,—who being awakened by the noise, got out of bed, and having lighted a candle, looked out of the window, and plainly saw the colour of the villain's coat, who immediately made off.

Laft week, the following fwindling trick was diffeovered at Aberdeen. A journeyman taylor called at a clothier's shop for his patterns or swatches, in the name of a lady whom he knew to be acustomer of the flop; he got the patterns, and returned in a flort time, faying the lady had pitched upon a particular piece of cloth for a coat for her fervant, and had defired him to take it off, which he accordingly did, along with lining and mounting, defiring the whole to be put to the lady's account, which was accordingly done. On fending the lady her account, it was discovered the whole was a fiction, the lady never having ordered fuch articles. The taylor was thereupon apprehended, and committed to prison by the Magistrates in order to stand trial. above instance should make shopkeepers very careful in trusting their goods to fuch persons, unless they bring proper authorities from the persons in whose names they some.

Horse Tax. - Last week the question, which has long been debated between the public and the farmers of the post- orse duties, was finally determined in the Court of King's Bench, before Lord Kenyon and the other Judges of that Court; -when it was folemaly adjudged, "That the hiring a horse for any distance, and returning the same day, is not posting," and confequently is not fubjett to the duty.— This may be relied on; - and it is faid that feveral actions are already commenced against the farmers, to compel them to refund the money exacted under the title of duty, and that the postmasters will be adduced as evidence. This branch of the revenue is now reduced to the same principle on which it was, whilft under the management of the collectors of the stamp-duties. Cumb. Pacquet.

FOR THE CALEDONIAN MERCURY. The LORD CHANCELLOR against himself and Mr PITT.

N the Lord Chancellor's speech, as mentioned in In the Lord Chancellor's speech, as mentioned in your paper of Thursday last, his Lordinip of serts, that, "in the eye of law, the King's political "capacity is always found, strong, and dative: That "throng as his political, is alfo his natural capacity;" and that the King is ever electmed whole and integral in his personal capacity."

Now, if both the King's political and natural capacities are ever sound and strong, I beg to know what is the deficiency in the exercise of the Royal authority that requires to be supplied?

It is said, however melancholy, it is a truth, that the King's mind is deranged. The case, therefore, stands thus: His Majesty (every man must lament stands thus: His Majesty (every man must lament it) labours under a total incapacity of mind, yet his natural capacity is found, strong, and entire! The King is, at one and the same time, both capable and incapable! On such a species of reasoning, the highest rights of the highest persons, and relative to sub-jects in which the welfare of an empire is concerned, are decided !

To cover the abfurdity, if possible, it is faid, that though the King is liable to human infirmities, yet legally his capacities, both natural and political, are found. If that be true, the machine of Government is quite complete and perfect. It ought, therefore, furely to many with the fame energy, and in the fame direction it formerly did. How idle and abfurd is it to fupply legal and natural incapacities, which, according to the argument, do not exist! And if no incapacity, legal or natural, exists, What hinders the King's Ministers, and other officers, from using the Royal name, and carrying on the government without interruption? They did fo a few months ago, in relation, perhaps, to a hundred acts of which the King was completely ignorant. What flops them now, fince we have it from the highest legal authority, that his Majesty's political and perfonal, or natural capacities, are, in law, found, firong, and entire? The conduct of the Ministers is unrely irreconcileable with their doctrine, as delivered by the mouth of the Lord Chancellor. Their conduct proves, that they do not believe a word of their own

Farther. Mr Pitt fays, that, from the King's indisposition, the personal exercise of the Royal authority is interrupted. The Lord Chancellor affirms, that the King is ever elected whole and integral in his perfonal capacity! The Lord Chancellor, however, in conclution, agrees with Mr Pier, that the King's perfonal or natural capacity, though found, firong, and entire, requires to be supplied! How is this absurdity to be accomplished? By committing another equally great, if not greater. By an order of the two Houses, authorising the Lord Chancellor, or fome other person, to give the King's affent to a certain bill, after thefe two Houses have already determined, that his Majesty has at present neither will nor affent to give, nor any mental capa-city of any kind! Hiftory furely does not record a higher abuse of human reason than is displayed on the prefent occasion.
